FARM AID SET-UP FACES VITAL TEST IN CAPITAL TODAY

Oral Arguments on Constitutionality of AAA
To Be Presented by Government and Hoosac Before Supreme Court.

JUSTICES MAY PASS ON BRUNO'S APPEAL

2 of 44 Disputes Before High Tribunal Involve Extension of Federal Power Over States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration's farm aid program goes on trial for its life tomorrow in the supreme court—with the outcome protecting vast political and economic consequences.

Lawyers for the government and the Hoosac Mills Corporation, of Massachusetts, finished preparations tonight for oral arguments on the constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act.

These briefs, already filed with the nine justices who unanimously struck down NRA, have raised not only the question of the validity of processing taxes—lifeblood of the AAA—but also of congress' latitude in legislation for the nation's "general welfare."

The "welfare" power, never defined by the high tribunal, has recently become the constitutional peg on which many New Deal laws are being defended. Its scope has been debated since the days of Alexander Hamilton and James Madison, whose widely-conflicting views have been cited.

Hauptmann Case.

Before listening to the lawyers—and questioning them—the black-robed justices, convening at noon after a two-week recess, will deliver opinions, and may announce whether they will pass on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's appeal from conviction in the Lindbergh case.

Two of the 44 cases in which final opinions may be forthcoming involve the extension of federal power over state affairs and the "welfare" clause.

One dispute affects the right of congress to declare removal of agricultural products from a federally-licensed agricultural board or agency of the United States. It originated in the arrest of Fred Hastings on a charge of stealing a bale of cotton from a Clarksburg, Miss., warehouse.

The other involves the validity of a section of the 1933 home owners' loan act authorizing federal incorporation of building and loan associations, an objection of the state which issued their original charters. Three Milwaukee associations are directly affected.

Argument by Reed.

Appearing in formal morning dress, Stanley Reed, the solicitor-general, will then begin his attempt to convince the justices that the circuit court of appeals at Boston was wrong in holding the entire farm act invalid in the Hoosac Mills case.

Giant French Plane Hops for Senegal

BORDEAUX, France, Dec. 8.—(AP)—France's giant seaplane, the "Lieutenant-De-Vaiseau-Paris," took off today for Dakar, Senegal, on its way across the south Atlantic to celebrate the 300th year of French rule in Guiana and the West Indies islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique.

Piloted by Flight Captain German Bonnot of Southern Cross trans-Atlantic fame, the six-motor plane will head a squadron of five planes and crack units of French sea and submarine forces on the anniversary trip late this month.

Philippine Clipper Delays Initial Hop

ALAMEDA, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The initial trans-Pacific flight of the Philippine Clipper seaplane, second sky liner to go in mail service on the ocean route, was postponed today until 6 p.m., eastern standard time, tomorrow.

Pan-American Airways' officials said the flight was delayed because more favorable wireless contacts with ships for weather reports could be made tomorrow.

The China Clipper returned here Friday from the first round-trip flight to Manila.

ELECTION ORDERED AT GATE CITY MILL BY LABOR BOARD

Action in First Case of Kind in Country Comes as Surprise To East Point Plant Officials.

Charles N. Feidelson, Atlanta regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, was directed last night to hold an election within seven days at the Gate City Cotton Mills at East Point, to determine whether Local 1938, of the United Textiles Workers of America shall represent employees of the concern in collective bargaining.

This order from the national board at Washington is the first to be issued in the country in the board's efforts to assert the authority over labor conditions in the textile industry granted under the provisions of the Wagner-Connelly labor relations act.

Feidelson in Washington.

Feidelson was reported to be in Washington last night and could not be reached in efforts to determine what date will be set for the election. It was expected though that the election will not be held until the latter part of the week.

The order from Washington was based on the board's decision after an examination of the record in a hearing held in Atlanta by Judge Feidelson.

Feidelson, a member of the Atlanta delegation, charged that the majority of employees of the mill were demanding union representatives in their dealings with mill owners over labor conditions. The mill owners disputed this charge, attacked the constitutionality of the act and sought to establish that the mill is not engaged in interstate commerce under the provisions of the Wagner-Connelly labor relations act.

SEARCH IS ENDED FOR BRUNO CLUES

Supreme Court Expected To Hand Down Decision on Lindy Case Today.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Search for new evidence that might save Bruno Richard Hauptmann's life came to a dead end tonight, and all the hopes of the pallid prison-trenton state prison's death house were transferred to nine elderly men in Washington who make decisions no power on earth can overrule.

Tomorrow afternoon the United States supreme court probably will render an opinion as to whether Hauptmann was fairly and fully tried for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. If the court decides his rights were scrupulously protected at Flemington, N. J., last winter and that there is no justification for a new trial, Hauptmann will have exhausted his last legal resource.

The only thing that can save his life then will be for his lawyers to go before the New Jersey court of pardons and, instead of arguing points of law, beg for life. The prospect that they could be able to tell the pardon court that justice had been denied fawned away to nothing to night when Ellis H. Parker, a country detective, finally said his interest in the Lindbergh case was nothing more than the same interest that hundreds of thousands of other Americans have.

HOUSTON RAVAGED BY FLOOD WATERS

3 Reported Drowned, Toll Runs Into Millions as Bayou Runs Amuck.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Hundreds of persons were homeless and property damage was estimated in millions of dollars tonight as flood waters swirled over the lower sections of Houston and Harris counties.

Three persons were reported drowned.

Flood waters from Buffalo bayou, which bisects the city and connects with the ship channel, menaced the business district, less than three blocks from the downtown.

Property damage was particularly heavy because of loss to Christmas merchandise in warehouses and stores rooms in the flooded district.

Practically all bridges over Buffalo bayou were closed. Heavy damage was done to railroad tracks at the ship channel and to the bridge over the Capitol avenue bridge, which connects the business district with northwest Houston, was submerged after being closed to traffic at noon.

A large freight was lost from its mooring in the ship channel last night, but the captain dropped anchor and prevented a collision with other vessels.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 8.—Our ancestors, the men and women who whittled this country out of rampaging wilderness—they were different, although perhaps difficult to nee.

They fought one another; they fought foreign powers. But, excusing politicians and professional whiners, they didn't do such an awful lot of fretting over the painful, primitive conditions of a pioneering life.

They fit you over almost any issue, their personal rights, their public wrongs, their national principles, their private prejudices, their outer boundaries, their internal policies. They fought one another; they fought foreign powers. M. H. BAGGETT, 87, DIES IN DOUGLASSVILLE HOME

M. H. Baggett, one of Douglas county's oldest citizens, died yesterday at the home of a son, A. S. Baggett, in Douglassville, at the age of 87. He had been ill for a week.

Mr. Baggett was a native of Cobb county and moved to Douglas county on a farm about a mile from Douglassville in 1881. The son at whose home he died is a former sheriff of Douglas county.

Other survivors are his wife; two other sons, N. G. and P. R. Baggett; a daughter, Mrs. J. W. McElveen, of Hartline, Ga., and 25 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the home of A. S. Baggett with the Revs. Wills M. Jones and C. A. Hall officiating. Burial will be in the Douglassville cemetery.

RELATIVES SUMMONED PARKER ENDS SEARCH TO BEDSIDE OF FALL FOR BRUNO CLUES*Former Secretary of Interior Is Gravely Ill at Home in Texas.

EL PASO, Texas, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Relatives were summoned hastily to the bedside of Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in President Harding's cabinet.

Physicians reported a definite turn for the worse in the condition of Mr. Fall, whose resignation from his cabinet was the result of a break of the oil scandals was followed by his conviction of accepting a bribe.

He served a prison term. The 74-year-old former senator from New Mexico suffered a sinking spell Friday at hospital here.

A daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase, was called from her ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., the home of Fall recently was threatened with eviction over mortgage differences which sprang up after the death of his friend, Edwin Doheny, oil man.

Mr. Fall, who is visiting in east Texas, was not named.

Colonel H. F. Pines, commandant at the hospital, said Fall has a slight chance to recover. Fall's condition had improved some today, the officer reported.

We are keeping a close watch over him and preparing for whatever development may arise.

Major F. E. Weatherby, medical corps attache, is at Fall's bedside.

denied, Hauptmann is at the end of the legal road.

Opinions Guarded. So zealously does the supreme court guard its opinions, that only the justice knows whether action has been taken or whether it has been postponed. The oil case, for example, is the customary day for supreme court hearings. Even the men who print supreme court opinions don't know, for the documents are cut up into brief sections and distributed among linotypers so that each individual has nothing but a jumble of words in front of him.

Hauptmann spent this important day in his life much as he spends all others. He slept fairly late, got up and put on his uniform consisting of a gray shirt, brown trousers and slippers. He ate breakfast off a paper napkin and fork and knife, the paper knife and fork being the only sharp utensils he has.

The home is now a literary shrine of the south.

Joel Chandler Harris To Be Honored Today

Ceremonies marking the birthday anniversary of Joel Chandler Harris will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon under auspices of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association.

The ceremonies, which will mark the birth 87 years ago at Eatonton, Ga., of the famous creator of Br'er Rabbit and Br'er Fox, will be held at the Atlanta Woman's Club, 1150 Peachtree street.

Mrs. C. M. Wilson, life president and founder of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, will be in charge of the services, and members of Mr. Harris' family have been invited as special guests.

Through the instrumentality of Mrs. Wilson and other prominent Atlanta women the Wren's Nest, West End home of the internationally known writer of the Uncle Remus stories, was purchased and restored.

The home is now a literary shrine of the south.

ALLEGED STOLEN GOODS SEIZED BY OFFICERS

Two negroes were arrested and looted allegedly stolen from a store at Eastman, Ga., was recovered when detective hid in a house in Auburn avenue.

Officer H. E. Wilson and several hours until the negroes entered.

The negroes gave their names as Ben Clark, 18, and Walker Jones, 32, both of Auburn avenue addresses.

According to Detectives J. T. Mitchell and P. E. Jones, Clark admitted robbing the store at Eastman on December 3.

The detectives also said Clark is wanted there for assault with intent to murder. Both negroes were held on charges of suspicion.

The alleged loot included shoes, stockings, pants, gloves, raincoats, towels, underwear, dry goods and other merchandise valued at $150.

Mercer county democrat said tonight that if the 1935 legislature reconvenes in special session, he will request an investigation of circumstances surrounding Governor Harold G. Hoffman's death-house interview with Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Jamieson described the incident as

"nothing but the exploitation of this celebrated crime for the purpose of providing our Governor with national publicity."

"The courts of this state and the integrity and fairness of our entire judicial system have been impugned

upon an international scale by Governor Hoffman's action in revealing to the press the story of his visit to the cell of the condemned Hauptmann in the assemblyroom.

"Whether the survival of this case is based upon anything more substantial than this midnight visit to the death cell or the 'feeling' of Ellis Parker, of Burlington (Burlington county chief of detectives), that Hauptmann is not the guilty man is not the state seems to know.

Hoffman said "S.P."

"The burden of producing definite proof that justice has miscarried in New Jersey now rests upon Governor Hoffman. Only the production of such evidence or a reasonable indication that it exists can justify what has been done."

Jamieson's statement followed closely by the Governor's

in which he defended his interest in Hauptmann, convicted murderer of

Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. Governor

Hoffman declared that as a member of the New Jersey court of pardons

it was his duty "to make sure that justice is done."

After answering criticism of his death house visit, the Governor said the celebrated case "is one with which the dimensions of American justice will be measured by all Americans and by the world."

Thousands of Rumors.

"Because of the proneness given to the general of rumors," he said,

"there have been thousands of rumors in circulation. Some of these rumors allege the existence of evidence not presented at the trial. Some of them

allege other conditions disadvantageous to either the prosecution or the defense.

"All these rumors must be set at rest as it is humanly possible to do so.

If the convicted man can produce no conclusive evidence calling

POLAR RESCUE PLANE KEPT HERE BY RAINS

'Break in Weather' May Permit Thaw To Continue Trip Today.

Grounded by adverse weather, Russel W. Thaw hoped for a 'break in the weather' last night so that he could take off by 10 o'clock this morning on the second leg of a 9,500-mile flight to South America.

Thaw, flying a long-winged Northrop monoplane, and the Wyatt Earp, supply ship of Lincoln Ellsworth, missing aerial explorer, to be used in searching the antarctic regions for the lost aviator, who has not been heard from for two weeks.

Thaw landed at Candler airport about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from Caldwell, N. J., on the first leg of the long flight. He is accompanied by William Henry Klenke Jr., of New York, mechanic.

The fliers spent last night at the airport and anticipated taking off this morning.

Weather forecasters at the airport said showers will break up by noon today, and that flying weather is good from New Orleans southward.

The next scheduled stop of Thaw's long flight will be at Rio de Janeiro, from there the ship will be flown to Magellan, Chile, where the Wyatt Earp will be contacted. The plane will be loaded on the supply ship for the trip to Ross sea.

ATHENS, GREECE, MAYOR WILL VISIT ATLANTA

Plans for Reception Studied; Key To Name Entertainment Committee.

Plans for the reception of Mayor Constantine Kotzias, of Athens, Greece, on his Atlanta visit were being studied yesterday by Mayor Key and leading members of the Greek colony.

Date for the projected visit, planned as part of Mayor Kotzias' tour of leading American cities, has not been set. It will be held at a later date, and details will be settled upon to make his visit to Atlanta one of the outstanding events in the history of the local Greek colony.

Mayor Key has invited him to be present, and Augustus E. Constantine, a man prominently identified in Greek activities in Atlanta and the entire southeast, is assisting in mapping a program of entertainment.

The Atlanta mayor will appoint a special committee to supervise arrangements. It will include many of the leading men in Greek business and professional men.

"As a matter in which the mayor of Athens, Greece, will be interested, I desire to state, and wish him to know, that we have a very large population of Greek-born and Greek-descended people whose homes are in Atlanta, and they are among the very highest esteemed by all of the other groups of our citizens," Key wrote Constantine, who is chairman of the national reception committee, in charge of arranging Mayor Kotzias' itinerary in the United States. "These Greek people, of course, will be delighted to have him make this visit, and they will be joined by all other groups of our people."

EX-SLAVE OFFICERS PRAISED BY PASTOR

Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of Homes Institute, in the prelude of a sermon delivered in Reed Street Baptist church yesterday morning, paid high tribute to the officers of the Ex-Slave Association, who are arranging a program to celebrate the 21st anniversary.

"The association has done much to relieve the suffering among the ex-slaves and aged colored people, giving them the necessities of life, where it is found they have no living relatives and friends to care for them," Rev. Holmes said. "There is a class of colored people who deserve the sympathy and help as the ex-slaves, who were true to their trust during the days of the War Between the States. These old faithful men and women are rapidly passing into the great beyond, and are only remembered for their faithful service," he said.

Contributions will be taken in many of the colored churches before the anniversary.

Full Measure of God's Love Told by Knight

REV. W. H. KNIGHT.

God's Love Is Subject of Sermon Delivered at Baptist Tabernacle

(Editor's Note: This is the 4th in a series of articles dealing with Atlanta pastors and their services. Additional articles will appear on succeeding Mondays.)

The full measure of God's love is so great that it is difficult for man to comprehend, Dr. W. H. Knight, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, declared yesterday in his morning sermon.

He said in part: "The love of God is a love that has its root in Himself alone. You and I love because we hold lovable objects. God loves by the very necessity of His nature. Like life, love is of many kinds. There is a love that ennobles, there is another that drags down. God's love is a righteous love. "Some of the most remarkable arise from the moral weakness of love involved. Witness the parental love that spares the rod and foolishly condones the sins of a reckless child, thereby ushering him further down the road of ruin. Compromise the holiness of God and He becomes unworthy of our worship. At Calvary, we see a love as righteous as it is merciful. God's love is a self-sacrificing love. "This is the surest test of love—

'GOOBER' CONVENTION 'HONOR' TO TALMADGE

Constitution Upholders' Meeting Date To Be Fixed Within Ten Days.

Governor Talmadge, sharp critic of the New Deal, said yesterday he considered it a "great honor" that the peanut growing states Committee to Uphold the Constitution is coming to Atlanta for a meeting, which he explained would be dedicated to "revitalizing" the democratic party.

"I did not suggest it," said the Governor, adding he felt honored that the session, probably in January, would be held here. He described the approaching meeting of men from many southern states as a move to "restore Jeffersonian democracy."

The Governor said he and Henry Kirby, of Houston, Texas, who he said was chairman of the committee, will fix the date for the convention.

Talmadge did not elaborate on plans of the committee. Nor did he disclose whether a party bolt is under consideration.

The Governor made public letterheads in his files in which L. S. Franklin was listed as national organizer of the upholding Constitution Committee.

Also listed on the letterheads were names which the Governor said formed the nucleus of membership in 17 states. He said he did not prepare the list, but indicated it came from a Texas leader in the movement.

RICHMOND LEADERS DENY CONNECTION

(Editor's Note: This is the 4th in a series of articles dealing with Atlanta pastors and their services. Additional articles will appear on succeeding Mondays.)

"There is no connection between us and the Governor," said Thomas C. Boushall, president of the Morris Plan Bank of Virginia, said tonight that neither he nor E. Randolph Williams had authorized the use of their names as members of a Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution.

"Here God's love differs from ours. While we were sinners, He loved us. While we hated Him and rebelled against Him, He loved us and gave Himself for us."

"There are certain attributes of God that need no proof. His power needs none. We see it in all the forces of nature that He is omnipotent. His wisdom needs no proof. Great is His existence and greatness, and we are the product of His hand beaks a wise and purposeful God. Our bodies so fearfully and wonderfully made, our thoughts so swift in their going, the regularity of nature the harmony of God's works, all declare the wisdom of God."

"We do not need to prove the Cross to prove these. They are self-evident. God's love needs to be proved.

Christianity Reveals Love.

"Man does not naturally believe it. On the contrary, he is inclined to doubt it. Mythology parades before us an almost endless procession of deities. There are mighty gods, cruel gods, lustful gods, benevolent gods. But in all the deities, there is also a god of love. Christianity alone reveals God's love.

"Neither do the experiences of life prove it. There are the problems of human suffering and the bleak hand of death. You had only to enter your home-garden. Death picked it off. There was the fire or tornado or depression that swept away all you possessed. The very sun in which we bask to-day becomes tomorrow the scorching death to our crops. Conscience, when awake, protests against the idea of God's love. When once a man is in trouble, he asks, 'Am I a sinner and God is holy?' how can we expect God to bless him? The only answer is in the Cross of Christ—'while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.'

"We do not see the full measure of God's love in either His life or teachings of miraculous deeds. We must go to the Cross. Here we find in Christ dying for us. Two things are involved in the expression 'for us.' First, it was voluntary and second it was substitutionary. He died instead of us. Christ's death proved not only the fact of God's love but the depth of that love, also the fullness of the fullness of God's love. The offering has imparted to him the likeness of God's nature. Moreover, the Cross proclaims the duration of God's love. The text is in the perpetual present tense—"God commendeth."

"Knowledge may widen and theories may come and go, but to the classes of men, the happy and the sorrowing, the rich and the poor, the citizens of first century Rome and twentieth century Georgia, God commendeth His love toward sinners by the death of His Son.

"We do not have the full force of these words until we learn from the text to the individual, from spiritual in general to ourselves in particular. God's love is as wide as the race. But it is also as narrow as the humblest individual. It is wide enough to comprehend all; it is concentrated enough to find each.

"Oh great heart of God! Whose

Cannot be hindered by nor crossed;

Will not wear, will not even

In our death it be lost—

Love divine! Of such great loving

Only mothers know the cost.

Cost of love which, all love passing,

Gave a Son to save the lost."

BOY HUNTER KILLED IN KENTUCKY WOODS

PADUCAH, Ky., Dec. 8.—(UPI)—Possemen today found James Scott, 13, seated on a log, dead from a rifle wound in his head. The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Scott, failed to return from hunting yesterday afternoon. Some 200 citizens combed the Clark's river district near here all night. Coroner W. J. Bass will add an inquest tomorrow. He said that although the boy's rifle was near his body he would scrutinize the evidence for possibilities of murder.

2 COASTGUARD FLIERS RESCUED FROM SEA

SALEM, Mass., Dec. 8.—(UPI)—Two coastguard aviators were rescued early tonight after the Amphibian plane in which they were returning from patrol duty at sea over turned while landing a mile and one-half out of Salem harbor.

The fliers, Lieutenant Victor Tydacka and Chief Machinist's Mate Eugene A. Gueut, of the coastguard seaplane base at Winter Isle here, were taken to a Salem hospital where they were reported suffering from exposure. Their condition was described as "good" and their names were not on the danger list.

MRS. BAILEY'S SENSITIVE SKIN

Rash Broke Out
But Cuticura Soothed

Read this letter—how smarting rash and blisters due to external causes were relieved in almost no time by Cuticura.

"I noticed an itching sensation on my face and about my fingers. Former blisters that left the skin very tender and sensitive. Finally a rash broke out which, when rubbed, caused a smarting and intense itching. It was agony.

"A sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment relieved me so much that I bought some. After using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one-half tin of Cuticura Ointment, the rash disappeared." (Signed, Mrs. Grace Bass, 390 East 20th St., Bronx, New York City.)

Cuticura also soothes the irritation of pimples, ringworm, burning and itching of eczema with wonderful speed and effectiveness. Buy today. Ointment 25c. Soap 25c. Samples FREE. Write to Cuticura, Dept. 19, Malden, Mass.—(adv.)

AMERICAN'S SISTER IS JAILED IN MADRID

MADRID, Dec. 8.—(UPI)—Sarah Alcuadova, 22, sister of Benjamin Pérez, 31, was arrested and held incommunicado today pending hearings on a warrant for her deportation issued by the Department of Public Safety. The warrant did not specify the charges against her, but jail attendants at the women's prison said she was suspected of espionage.

HOTEL EXECUTIVES GATHER IN VALDOSTA

VALDOSTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—(UPI)—

Members of the executive council of the Georgia Hotel Association were in a Valdosta Saturday for a semi-annual conference and were guests of Horace Caldwell, manager of the Hotel Daniel Ashley.

The conference was held at the call of Adam Smith, of Savannah, president of the association.

In addition to mapping out business plans for the next convention of the association, much time was given to plans for the Southeastern Hotel Exposition which is to be held under the auspices of the association in Atlanta on January 23. The association intends to make this exposition the greatest hotel event in the history of the southeast.

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 9, 1935.

MESSAGES OF BETTER TIMES

Government and private surveys of economic conditions made public during the past few weeks tell a convincing story of continuing betterment in trade, industry and finance.

An Associated Press report contains the information that during the past week "wholesale and retail trade spurted; money in circulation reached a new high peak;
railroad revenues eclipsed 1934
marks; the nation's gold stocks passed the $10,000,000,000 level for the first time on record, and from Ohio come statements of big employment and pay roll gains."

Dun & Bradstreet report retail sales for the week up from 8 to 20 per cent over the previous week and 5 to 15 per cent over the same week last year. Wholesale orders for Christmas merchandise climb to 20 to 25 per cent above 1934.

The weekly business survey of the Department of Commerce reports that "retail trade in the 33 largest cities of the country moved forward on a wide front during the week ending November 20, being marked by large volumes of deferred buying in many centers and the advent of active holiday shopping in several important areas."

A distinctly improved tone is reported in wholesale markets, with production and sales average 15 to 25 per cent higher than for the same period a year ago. In many wholesale centers no surplus stocks are available for clearance, while it is reported that "the cumulative pull of higher production in basic heavy industries continued to step up business passing through New York sales offices on a vast variety of products."

The automobile industry reports a marked increase in sales of new automobiles from September to October, with the sales in the latter months being 8 per cent higher than in 1934 and 20 per cent above 1933. The aggregate value of the cars sold during the first 10 months of this year is 31 per cent higher than for the same period last year and 74 per cent above 1933.

A significant indication of the increased buying power of the public is reflected in the announcement that, despite the increase in sales,
the volume of automobile financing has decreased. In other words, more people now are paying cash
for their new cars.

The National Industrial Conference Board in its monthly survey of business activity reports that "the general improvement in business activity, noted during the past four months, continued through October and the first half of November, with more than seasonal increases being registered."

The report emphasizes that "improvement has been general in fields of production, trade and finance," citing that machine tool orders were 134 per cent greater, residential building 109 per cent and automobile production 91 per cent larger than in October, 1934.

The campaign of the government to hasten the removal of unemployed workers from public to private pay rolls is described in the Guaranty Survey, monthly review publication of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York as "the most constructive approach to the problem of recovery yet taken."

The Survey points out that—

As a result of a combination of factors, including governmental aid, a normal recuperative forces, and a considerable revival of confidence allowing the supreme court's decision invalidating the essential features of the national industrial recovery act,
some tangible betterment in business has occurred. Business activity, employment and pay rolls have increased moderately. The drastic deflation of values has been halted and has given way to a gradual upward trend.

Thus trade, industry and finance join with agriculture, now in its best condition in many years, in reporting substantial and sound progress in the recovery march.

Much is still left to be done in the way of adjustments, and in adapting to normal conditions the emergency measures necessarily resorted to that the country might fight its way out of the depths of the depression, but it is clear that these are minor things in comparison to what has been accomplished.

There remain doubters—those of fain heart, lack of vision and the will to drive forward on the new road to a more stable prosperity—but the concrete facts of improvement are convincing evidence that economically speaking the "goose honks high" in America again.

HOLIDAY SAFETY

The Santa Claus have not appeared on the streets as an attraction to very young children, but the older boys and girls are tagging along with father or mother to inspect the multitude of articles displayed for the holiday trade, and as we approach nearer Christmas the streets will become more and more crowded with shoppers and children.

It is a period when accidents will happen, but their number may be greatly reduced, and their severity made less, if all, both young and old,
can be impressed with the necessity of observing unusual caution when walking along a sidewalk, crossing a street or driving an automobile.

The Chicago Safety Council estimates that some 56 persons are doomed to die from traffic accidents in the Chicago area during the holiday period, and there will be numerous fatalities in Atlanta in the same period, with many suffering severe injuries, unless special precautions are exercised by all users of the public thoroughfares.

In the hope that this grim forecast may be greatly lessened, we append some practical advice issued by the safety council for the use of those who are anxious to avoid special hazards of the season:

Don't rush headlong into a stream of motor traffic while thinking only of what you should buy for grandmas or Cousin Jake.

Don't try to get on or off a moving street car, bus, or train—if you do, this Christmas may be your last one.

If you must load your arms with bundles, try to carry them low enough so as not to obscure vision. It is much safer to have parcels delivered wherever possible.

While motorists should allow pedestrians the right of way, regardless of whether or not traffic lights do so, pedestrians will find themselves moving about faster and with considerably less risk if they will await the proper signal from policeman or stop and go lights.

Co-operation between pedestrians and motorists is essential to the reduction of accidents. The heedless pedestrian is largely responsible for accidents in which they figure. The practice that has grown in Atlanta of pedestrians stepping from the sidewalk into the street while waiting for a traffic light to change is decidedly dangerous, as is that of motorists turning a corner without stopping.

The "jay-walker" is always in danger, for the average motorist driving a speedy car may not be watching for the individual who is in too great a hurry to walk to the street corner.

Last, but very important, is the danger of imbibing too freely of holiday cheer, for both motorists and pedestrians take a grave chance if they venture out on the highways and streets while under the influence of intoxicants.

The height of tolerance is Major Bowes' "all right" to a nineteen-year-old soprano who has just

Amazing Developments

In Ethiopia.

ADDIS ABABA—An Abyssinian army is successfully fighting its way forward into the Italian colony of Eritrea. On the southern front another Abyssinian army has entered Italian Somaliland and is heading straight for Mogadisso, the chief Italian port on the Indian ocean. For this reason General Graziani has sent General Tassanelli to the front. The Italian forces are credited with the capture of 50 bushels a year and less) from the solanum tuberosum movement.

If you only knew the inside enforcement troubles of the AAA pig chasers alone, you would realize why they do not want to try catching small potatoes. You will never learn about it from Washington because this topic is considered taboo by official government dispensers of information.

But it will form more than one thrilling chapter in AAA history when the boys behind the plow start telling all.

PIGS A faint grasp of the scope of their difficulty may be gained from the experience of Malone, N. Y., revenue officers in running down seven small pigs. The stout-hearted officers have been in close company with nearly two years now. The United States marines could have done no more. Yet at last account, the pigs were still far ahead.

The last account was given in a local up-state newspaper interview with Dan Gillette, a Thayer Corners farmer in the town of Burke, Franklin county.

Mr. Gillette is a Vermont type of farmer who keeps his books on the barn door in pencil. Thus he knows that, in October, 1934, he sold a 135-pound pig to a friend; again, in May, 1934, a 150-pound pig to the same friend. He says that, along about May, he also took five little pigs to market in Malone. There the packer said they weighed 538 pounds dressed, and that there was no tax on them as long as he raised them.

The revenue officer first came to see Mr. Gillette in August, 1934.

Since then Mr. Gillette has been having more trouble with his taxes than

J. P. Morgan and Mellon together.

CHASE The first revenue officer figured it all up and decided no tax was due. But two months later, October, 1934, came another.

He figured and figured, advising Mr. Gillette it "will be plenty."

When he finished, he said the tax and fine amounted to $44, including the seven pigs.

These figures, the officer sent to Syracuse. Mr. Gillette soon received a letter demanding the tax and fine. He appealed to the packer, but the packer had no record.

Mr. Gillette concluded that the revenue officer must have imagined the pigs to be 200 pounds apiece whereas they were "just little fellers."

Therefore, he retired into his shell.

A second letter some weeks later hiked the amount to $47, which only goes to show how fast pigs can grow.

The letter was followed by another re-venuer with "some kind of a warrant."

That conference developed much harsh language, but no pigs or money.

Twice again last spring came revengers, both going over Mr. Gillette's double-door bookkeeping system on the barn. They just took down the figures and went away.

The second one came back in the middle of May, with an announcement that the pigs had shrunk. What Mr. Gillette really owed was $42.50. He advised Mr. Gillette to submit those figures and Mr.

Gillette did, but he has not yet received an answer.

"Along about September," however, Mr. Gillette got a threatening demand that he settle. And last month came another.

ADAMANT If you think Mr. Gillette is frightened, you do not know

Mr. Gillette. This is his off-season. He has heard about the good meals served in the Franklin county jail. He knows friends who will bring him cigarettes. Consequently, he is taking a strong position.

They have rode me enough. If they think they can make an honest and discussing the chances of conference success. There was no announcement of any decisions that may have been reached.

Great Britain, steering cautiously through the dangerous reefs of sectional and national quarrels and jealousies, will attempt to keep the conference clear of such disputes.

Imperialists will organize itself into a general committee, and delegates will begin efforts to dovetail diverse and seemingly irreconcilable positions.

No regional committees will be appointed at the outset. In this way the British hope to prevent Mediterranean, Pacific and other political situations from overshadowing the main purpose of the meeting.

Purpose of Conclave.

The naval conference opening at Clarence House at 10:30 a. m. today will be called a "Great Britain" to attempt to work out a new treaty to replace the Washington naval treaty of 1922 and the London treaty of 1930. Both expire at the end of 1936, following Japan's renunciation of the pact.

Little, if any, of the disarmament optimism prevailing 14 years ago remained as the delegates of five great powers, summoned to Washington to begin a shipbuilding holiday in 1922, gathered with their technical staffs.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States are represented.

Britain, which initiated the conference, is confronted with three serious difficulties which did not exist or were not acute in 1922.

They affect three great oceans vital to the British empire, and involve the three great "have not" powers which are felt to have a covetous eye upon parts of that empire—Japan, Germany and Italy.

Japanese Influence.

Since the powers assembled at Washington, eager to eliminate offensive navies, Japan has become a world power, rapidly spreading into China and crowding upon traditional British interests in the orient.

Germany has broken the military clauses of the Versailles treaty and is now a naval power. Britain and France have begun to fit up its muscles in the Mediterranean which Mussolini and John Bull both like to regard as "mare nostrum."

Destruction of the great German warship may permit the British for 15 years to virtually forget the North Sea, and the British, desirous and concentrate attention on the Mediterranean, the empire line of communication, and the far east, where Singapore was developed as a great naval base.

Fliers Start Hunt FOR PAUL REDFERN

He said he had flown over much similar country while operating his aircraft out of Georgetown.

Winnoboto, he said, near the source of the mighty Corentyne river, which rises in Brazil and separates British Guiana and Dutch Guiana at about 500 miles to the Atlantic, was well known to him as the base of a commission surveying the boundaries of the three countries.

He expected to find numerous crews to a light on in the event of plane trouble.

Somewhere in the vast unbroken country Redfern was believed to be living with the medicine man of an Indian tribe seldom touched by civilization.

Redfern was said to be a cripple as a result of a crash in his plane.

William Lavarre, United States explorer, brought back a hat and bits of wreckage believed to be from Redfern's plane after a trip in South America.

ETHIOPIANS INDIGNANT OVER DESSEY'S BOMBING

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Ethiopia seethed with indignation tonight at the double bombing of Emperor Haile Selassie's headquarters by Dassye.

Many believed the two-day bombardment of the city and Red Cross hospital camp outside the town by fascist war planes would hasten a long-predicted major battle in the north.

Authorities reported 55 were killed and more than 300 wounded on the first day. Casualty figures for Saturday were lacking, but a report from the wrecked American hospital said the institution again was bombed.

DESSYE IS DESOLATED AFTER TWO BOMBINGS

BY JAMES A. MILLIS.

DESSYE, Ethiopia, Dec. 8.—This morning headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie resembled a great and empty sepulchre from which all life had vanished tonight. Terrified inhabitants streamed toward the mountains in a night-long exodus.

They carried their pitiful belongings on their backs. Some bore sick and crippled relatives. Women walked with babies strapped to their bodies.

Discuss Oil Embargo.

It is now, actual negotiations will start before December 12, when the League sanctions committee is to meet in Geneva to discuss an oil embargo against Italy.

In the event Mussolini's reply is favorable, informed persons pointed out, Sir Samuel and Laval will move for a delay in the oil embargo when they report the peace plan to the League conciliation committee of five, which would be revived.

Then the committee of five could recommend that the sanctions committee of eighteen postpone the embargo.

One mother and two babies, their bodies charred and mangled, were brought to the hospital.

Only the braver inhabitants remained behind to help bury the dead.

Many natives were found buried in the blackened wreckage of their homes.

PATROLMAN FACES DISORDERLY CHARGE

Charges of intoxication, disorderly conduct and wife-beating were placed against Patrolman S. L. Ivey, member of the Atlanta police force for 12 years, following an alleged disturbance in his home at 502 Chestnut street, N. W. last night.

A disorderly conduct charge was also placed against his wife, Mrs. S. L. Ivey. Lieutenant Fred Tippin made the arrests when he went to the Ivey home on complaint of neighbors.

Patrolman Ivey will be arraigned at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in recorder's court. He was released on his own recognizance. Police were called to the Ivey home, in an apartment building, about 11 o'clock.

PEACE BY CHRISTMAS PHOSPHENIZED BY LEAGUE.

ROME, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Peace by Christmas seemed possible, if improbable, tonight to diplomats who doggedly tried to make a deal between Benito Mussolini and the French.

The proposition makes it clear that each government—Italy and Ethiopia—must have absolute sovereignty over the territory it acquires or retains.

League of Nations assistance for Ethiopia is still in doubt. If Haile Selassie asks for it, in the event, Italy would play no more important part in helping the African kingdom than any other League member.

SMALL TOWN GIRL

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

INSTALLMENT I.

The Weare is a meandering and gracious river, curving in wide reaches through the lowlands to the sea; and it rises, as any New Hampshire stream will tell you, in Carvel, a town back of Cap's home, built sometime after his last "voyage"—he was in the China trade, turned his back on the ocean and came a hundred miles inland to make himself a home; and the big brick-ended house he built, with the famous barn behind, stands about a mile south of Carvel village, in the angle where White river and Rapid river flow together to form the Weare.

The captain brought his bride to Carvel, and his daughter was born there; after he died, his daughter wedded Will Brannan; and Will came to live with his wife and her mother. When Emily and Kay Brannan were babies, Grandma Somes died, and the name died with her; but the house was still "Cap's." Somes had a son, and Carvel and the countryside around Emily went to Wellesley, and on a certain fine morning in mid-June, Kay Brannan walked up to get the mail. Will had a box in the post office, and usually brought the mail when he came home to lunch, but today he was indisposed, and would stay at home. George Hastings would have sent the mail with their grocery order if he had been asked to do so; but his truck would not deliver till late in the forenoon, and this was Monday, so that there was apt to be a letter from Emily. Kay was always eager for Emily's letters, so she came to town.

She walked; for she was used to walking, and this day was warm, with a soft wind full of pleasant whisperings. Leaves were unfolding like butterflies trying their wings. The grass was sprouting from the sod, confidently expecting to grow tall and lush, as ignorant of lawns and a college school as the discipline of the river. There was some late shade bloom in bloom along the river, and flowers in garden beds along the way.

Where such a girl as Kay is concerned, dimensions are of no importance; but for the sake of the record, Kay was small, only a fraction over five feet. She was bareheaded today, and wearing her mother's old-fashioned sweater, a woolen, white, pointed sweater, nor coat. She walked as though she enjoyed doing so, with shoulders straight and sung, and head high; and her heels clicked briskly. She seemed not to hurry, so easily she moved; yet for a person whose utmost comfortable stride was only a little more than two feet, she covered ground at a surprising speed.

Her eyes were alert, and she missed nothing along the way. Small matters may assume a large importance in Carvel, remote from the passing world, isolated and self-contained. There is a railroad through Newfield, some eight miles to the north, at the foot of the lake, and another at Dexter, seven miles to the south; but Carvel itself is midway between the two lines, unpeopled by them. Even the main road goes to one side or the other, so that the town sees little of the transient stream of summer folk. There are a few cottages in Coops pond, three or four miles to the west, for the most part owned by Carvel people, who use them as summer homes or as resorts for week-end vacations, or for winter-cures. The river now lies deep on the ice across the pond.

The town itself is rather industrial than agricultural. White river, the outlet of the lake, comes cascading down the steep and rocky gorge north-east of Carvel, and three mills use she said smilingly. Lillian taught in the Carvel school. "I'm glad of it," the older girl said. "The children don't do any real work after the weather gets warm. There's really no sense in keeping them in." They entered the post office and approached the wicket together, and Sue Clemens—Ed Clemens was postmaster—had two letters and a paper.

"Nothing for you, Lillian," she said.

Kay, looking at her mail, cried: "There's one from Emily!" as happily as though this were not expected.

"Oh, I've been meaning to tell you!" Lillian exclaimed. "Miss Farmer is the water power thus made available. Charley Radford's shingle mill catches the first fall; the Carvel Woolen Mill which has been in business since 1880 is a wealthy man, are lower down; and nearer the foot, and at the very heart of the town, the Central New Hampshire Power Company has a plant and office building, filled day and night with the hum of turbine-driven dynamos.

The office is diagonally opposite the entrance to the power company's office on the village square. A few stores and a filling station cluster near, and so far as the business section of Carvel is concerned, that is all. But along Main street there are pleasant homes, on well-spaced lawns, the houses fresh with chaste paint, thrifty and self-contained.

As Kay came to town today, folk went out of their way to the pleasure of her bright "good morning." In front of Chuck Webster's filling station, she overtook Elmer Radford, a few years older than Kay, and slipped her arm through that of the older girl. The gesture was affectionate.

"Soon be vacation now, Lillian?"

signing after this year. I'm sure Emily can get her place. You know, she teaches the fourth grade. Miss Farmer hasn't told anyone but me, so if Emily applies right away, she'll have the best chance.

"I'll tell her," Kay promised. "I'll write to her tonight."

"I had to wait a year after I graduated before there was an opening," Lillian explained, eyes alight with jealousy.

"Emily's lucky to find something right away."

"She certainly is," Kay agreed. "And thank you for telling me. She'll be so grateful to you . . ."

Something exploded outside the post office, and a motorcycle stopped at the door and Elmer Radford alighted and came in. He had leather stirrups, an array of pliers and wrenches hanging from the heavy belt strapped around his overalls, a leather loop hooked to the belt. He saw his sister and Kay, and his ears burned red.

"Hi, Lil," he said. "Hi, Kay! Got the mail, did you, Lil?" Thought you were at school by now."

"Your stirrups are digging holes in the floor," Lillian warned him chidingly.

"Got to go out east of town and work on some hot stuff," Elmer explained.

"Mail for me?" Lillian shook her head. "Well, so long," said Elmer. He grinned at Kay, doubtfully.

"Be careful," Kay warned him, smiling a little. "Don't touch a wire or anything." Elmer was a linesman for the power company.

"Check," he assured her. "But we've got to get everything in shape for the new boss. He's due the end of this week."

The imminent arrival of a new superintendent at the power plant was the big news of the day in Carvel. "Oh, who is he?" Kay asked. Her father, as one of the older men in the organization, had held some vain ambitions when the office became vacant a month before. She knew his grievous disappointment when word came that the place would be filled from outside.

Hundred dollars toward the cause, and which, combined with other gifts, will soon complete the needed sum.

Whatever your ability to give, don't delay. Send your check now to Hugh Trott, treasurer of The Opportunity Fund, care of The Constitution. It will be promptly acknowledged in this column.

Family Faces Separation.

Delay? There can be no delay. Mrs. M., and her children are suffering the agony of suspense, not knowing whether or not their essential needs will be provided for another year. Now, consider whether the homes they have created, to which they have contributed so much care and work, the home into which they have poured so much love, will be theirs for one more year. Not knowing whether they may remain, happy and contented, together or whether the little family must be separated, the boy and girl will find the girls into strange homes and the mother to live lonely and sad and disengaged, in some rooming house, separated from the children she loves so well, and for whom she can do so much as they approach the years of manhood and womanhood.

Then let's answer quickly, Atlanta.

Let us bring the comfort of the Constitution to these unfortunate ones among us without delay. Let us not prolong their uncertainty, their suspense and their worry. Let's send them the good news within the next day or two. Let's seize our opportunities and care of each of the Ten Opportunity families as their stories are told.

Families Carefully Selected.

In selecting the ten families for this year's Ten Opportunities the case histories of several thousands in the files of the Family Welfare Society were carefully checked and selected more than 100 for further investigation. And, after visits by trained investigators and most careful study, the ten families whose stories you will read in these columns this Christmas time, were chosen.

First of all, of course, was the welfare of their need. Second consideration was given to the inherent ability in the members of each family, particularly the children, to become worthy citizens if given the proper chance to be. They are selected for Atlanta because of responsibilities. Every contributor to the Ten Opportunities may know they are not only relieving suffering but they are creating the proper environment, holding together the home, where little children may best grow to be the splendid men and women they can become if provided equal opportunity elsewhere.

Opportunity Number One brings not only opportunity for decent life to Mrs. M. and her children, but opportunity to some one, in Atlanta, to know the greatest happiness this old world holds, the happiness of knowing that your own gifts have brought security and joy to others.

More Blessed to Give.

Those old words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," are true to-day, and we are better able to appreciate and to understand today than in those ancient times.

Wouldn't you, for instance, feel it worth while to forego one fishing trip this coming year so you might receive, once each month, the report from the Family Welfare Society that tells you "your opportunity family" is fulfilling the promise, is living decently and happily and well, that the children are doing splendidly in school, that the mother is becoming a valuable and beloved member of her community and that one more Atlanta home has been firmly established in peace and love, through your gifts?

Can you imagine a greater monthly kick than that? We're offering to you today at bargain price. Just $36 a month.

And, even if your gift cannot be for the Opportunity in full, wouldn't it be nice to contribute whatever it is, spread out, with others, over the entire year? Bringing, not only excitement and fun and rich food for Christmas Day, but quiet content and happiness the year around.

It is your opportunity. It knocks, from these columns at your door this morning, and some Atlanta or less the man or woman through whom God will answer the prayers of Mrs. M. and her little ones.

What a blessed honor if you should be that one chosen of the Father who has said, "If you do it unto the least of these, My little ones, ye do it unto Me."

Opportunity No. 1

for the past two years, the financial security and relief from the constant fear of lack of the bare necessities of life, has brought wholesome recreation, schooling and health for the three children. They are really splendid youngsters and if things continue to go well, will surely grow into citizens of whom any community can be proud.

Mrs. M. herself, while she has given the finest of all contributions to her community through the happy home and the proper training she has provided for her children, has secured some training herself and is able to contribute by her own efforts a portion of the necessary monthly income.

The group which has sponsored this family for two years may not be able to assume the responsibility any longer. Even if they can, they would like someone else to take over Mrs. M. and her children so they could devote their efforts to another of the Opportunity families.

The amount needed, for a family of four, is surprisingly small. Only $36 a month for the coming year.

Don't you, or you, or you, know some way by which this sum may be assured?

TOM MOONEY PASSES 53D BIRTHDAY IN JAIL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—(P)—Tom Mooney passed his 53d birthday today—in a cell at the county jail.

For 18 years, ever since he was arrested and accused of bombing the 1916 Preparedness Day parade here, Mooney has been behind prison bars.

The life-term convict wistfully expressed a desire to be at home with his wife, Rena, and eat some of his favorite cake—chocolate. But instead he devoted most of the day to preparing new arguments for use when his habeas corpus hearing is resumed tomorrow.

Relatives and a few friends visited him to extend felicitations.

Guy G. Morris, 35, operator of a restaurant at 389 Marietta street, N. W., was shot and slightly wounded in the left shoulder by a negro bandit about 9:30 o'clock last night. The negro escaped.

Although wounded, Morris fired several shots at the fleeing man. He was admitted to Grady hospital. His condition was described as "not serious."

Morris told police the negro entered and demanded money. "I was going to get it for him," he told police, "but before I had even had a chance to turn around he drew a pistol and fired at me."

STUDENTS IN CAIRO CLASH WITH POLICE

CAIRO, Dec. 8.—(P)—Police and students clashed here today in fresh an-British rioting.

The students rioted when the police attempted to prevent a student conference at the medical college. The students pelted the police with stones and turned the college fire hose on them.

Several were injured, including one British officer. Later, crowds of students paraded the streets, shouting: "Down with Britain!"

PROTEGE WILL VISIT BARRYMORE ON COAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(P)—Elaine Barrie, 20-year-old protege of John Barrymore, said tonight she expects to go to the west coast during the coming month to see the stars.

Asked if she had a definite understanding with Barrymore as a result of long distance telephone conversations and would see him by arrangement, she replied, "Yes, that is true."

Mary Young, stage star and producer in whose play Miss Barrie appeared in Boston, "is going to California to produce a play and I am going with her," she said.

A romantic episode and subsequent disagreement between Barrymore and Miss Barrie attracted public interest some months ago.

Where the old executive goes, his path will be lined with police and secret service men. Hundreds of extra patrolmen have been added to the stockade detail to insure his safety. Their officers went through a "dress rehearsal" of their duties today.

At Farm Bureau headquarters, meantime, there was a different sort of preparation for the President's coming. Credentials of delegates from 37 states were carefully checked, and the resolutions committee was hard at work whipping the organization's attitude on important questions into shape.

The farmers were to remain in session for three days. They were to hear, in addition to the President, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace; Chester A. Davis, AAA administrator; Wallace's assistant, M. L. Wilson, and Representatives T. Alan reau Federation at Chicago and the other later at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind. In them he was expected to give a thorough exposition of his views on domestic and international issues.

Warm Springs Departure.

There was a deep feeling apparent about the tiny station at Warm Springs as Mr. Roosevelt said good-bye today to his neighbors and friends.

Mr. Roosevelt about a complete freedom as is allowed a President. He indulged to the utmost, swimming every morning and driving his car about during the afternoon.

A White House staff established at the Springs Foundation maintained constant contact with Washington by telephone and telegraph, but only routine business was attended to.

Speaks in Chicago.

Arriving in Chicago tomorrow morning shortly after breakfast, he motors to the international amphitheater and stocks up to speak before the Farm Federation, one of the largest of the agriculture organizations.

Entaining immediately after the address the President goes to Notre Dame University. The occasion is a special convocation at which he will receive an honorary degree of doctor of law.

Immediately thereafter he starts for Washington, where he is to speak at 10 a. m. Atlanta time, at the good news they expected. Few Bureau leaders hinted they, in turn, would have good news for him.

With the 1936 elections only a matter of months away, the 300,000 families that are members of the federation are ready to decide their stand on political issues.

Heretofore, they staunchly supported the New Deal.

Criticism of the AAA and the Canadian trade treaty has been voiced since then, and the President's answer to it was bound to effect the report of the federal newspapers committee on Wednesday.

Farm Program His Topic.

To the farmers, the important thing was that President Roosevelt was responsible because he was to speak on his farm program on the day the supreme court was to open deliberations in Washington on the constitutionality of the keystone of the program.

It is inconceivable that Senator Robinson's seat can be seriously contested, as it is believed that the good people of Arkansas will feel as the administration does, that he has rendered invaluable service to his state and the nation.

Glass has been a determined foe of New Deal monetary policies, but of young husband following a night club quarrel over a pretty "cigarette girl," November 3, obtained her release from the county jail under $7,500 bond today.

Brenton Root, 32, son of the Rev. Benjamin F. Root, Protestant Episcopal rector of Chicago, was slain at his home, according to officers, and Mrs. Root as saying she aroused him from sleep and shot him to death because he had flaunted his love for Lucile Underwood, 19, "cigarette girl," before her at a cabaret party, two hours earlier.

Mrs. Root had been in jail since her arrest. The posting of the bond shortly before noon today came as a surprise, as her attorney, A. B. Galway, had indicated Saturday she would not be liberated before tomorrow.

Gandhi Improved.

WARSAW, Ind., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, suffering from the effects of high blood pressure, passed a quiet night and attendants said his condition had returned to normal.

Pruning mature apple trees does not significantly improve the fruit, is the verdict from experiments at Cornell University.

'Eye' for World's Largest Telescope Removed and Pronounced Success

200-Inch Blue and Tan Glass Disc Is Taken From Oven; Astronomers Order Huge 'Mirror' Sent to Pasadena as Soon as Possible; Figuring Expected To Take Approximately Five Years.

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The 200-inch wide "eye" for the world's largest telescope, a blue and pale tan piece of glass the size and shape of a circus ring, was removed today from the oven where it has been heated for 10 hours. It may be the great Corning Glass Works and pronounced a success.

The face was unexpectedly rough, with hollows and holes, some as much as three inches deep. The roughness was due to the roof of the oven coming in contact with the glass.

The great New York state fair of last July, which forced shutting off the electric heat in the big disc oven for about 48 hours, were said to have been a probable contributing factor.

The pits, it was revealed today, were discovered more than a month ago, (scope, an instrument twice as big as any now in existence, or even planned.

The emergence of this biggest piece of glass from its coal-black iron oven was photographed and watched by an audience packed around a square gal-

"The crowd was tense when someone said here was the "eye" expected to see three or four times farther than man ever saw before, to look at 27 times more volume of space, to see perhaps the incredible distance of one billion, two hundred million light years, the distance it takes light to

The big disc was eased down from the bottom of its oven, and set on railroad tracks.

Dr. George V. McCauley, Corning glass works expert, stood on its top under blinding lights and made a brief speech. Later Dr. J. C. Hostetter, director of development and research, joined Dr. McCauley, both using the glass as a platform for of-

As it stands today the great piece of glass is 26 inches thick. Strong enough to support a small house built on its face. The underside is filled with hollow cores, which rise to within six inches of the surface at the edges, and are 10 inches at the center portion of the disc.

Without these cores the glass would weight 40 tons. With them its final weight will be about 20 tons.

Horton Stars in Show Presented at Capitol

A hilarious program of fine entertainment began a week's engagement yesterday at the Capitol theater.

The feature picture, "His Night Out," starring Edward Everett Horton and Irene Harvey, is a laugh from start to finish, and the stage show, "Parisian Nights," leaves nothing to be desired for those seeking entertainment of a high order.

The stage revue has a cast of 22 stage and radio stars, mostly girls, who are featured in several production numbers, which makes the presentation a little out of the ordinary. Vaudeville novelties are also a feature of the stage show.

Star acts with "Parisian Nights" include "Wimpy," comedian; the Three Revelers, comedy and acrobats; the Grand Sissies, novelty singing and dancing; Don Patterson; Helen Beard; Doris O'Brien and Francis Drake in specialty dances and Bert Snyder, master of ceremonies.

The feature film tells a riotous tale of a hypochondriac, played by Horton who imagines that he is ill every minute of the day and night. How sweet heart, Irene Harvey, cures him of his imaginary ills forms the basis for one of the best comedies of the season.

Its a Mere Matter of Geography!

To Richard 'way down in Jupiter, Florida . . . that gem of a spot tucked in between Indian River and the Atlantic . . . where its June in January . . . where the exotic perfume of jas- mine and orange blossoms mingle with the pungent pine fragrance of the Christmas tree growing in the patio . . . "Santa Claus, North Pole" really receives his mail at Rich's in Atlanta.

Yes, Richard, you and thousands of other little Southern boys know that Santa Claus' relay station . . . his store house of treasures is at Rich's 'way up in Atlanta, Georgia.

For sixty-eight years Rich's has been headquarters for Santa Claus . . . here little boys and little girls have made known their Christmas wishes.

And here again Richard we've gotten in touch with Santa at the North Pole and your 26-in. bicycle will certainly be beside your tree Christmas morning.

Visiting Poet Found Romance In Columbia University Class

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Daniel Whitehead Hickey, or to be more informal, Jack Hicky, of New York, Sally found a very romantic angle to the interesting life of this famous visiting artist. Mr. Auslander is an internationally known poet in addition to holding the chair of English and poetry at Columbia University. He possesses a cultural manner and voice which is tempered with a slight and fascinating foreign accent. His pleasant manner and savoir faire gains for him countless friends and admirers, who are numbered among leaders in various fields throughout the country. He is a native of Vienna, although he has resided in this country for many years.

But back to a more personal sketch. His charming and beautiful wife is Audrey Wurdemann whom, Jack Hicky reveals, possesses the beauty similar to Atlanta's own Mrs. Joseph Cooper. She is a noted poetess and won last year's Pulitzer poetry prize with her "Bright Ambush," and bears the distinction of being the youngest winner of this coveted prize. Her latest book is "The Seven Sins," and is just off the press. Leaving her home in Seattle, Wash., Miss Wurdemann went to New York, where she was enrolled as a student in Mr. Auslander's class at Columbia University. The school listed the class as poetry but to the teacher and pupil it was a romance class, for romance in its most glamorous form found its way into the classrooms.

They make a charming and interesting couple. She is the great-granddaughter of Percy Bysse Shelly, the famous eighteenth-century English poet. Mr. Auslander is one of the greatest poets of the age and Sally recalls his poem, "A Letter to Emily Dickinson," was awarded the Palms $1,000 prize for the best poem of 1930. Among his other works of prominence are "Cyclone's Eye," "Sunrise Trumpets," "Letters to Women," "No Traveller Returns," "Hell in Harness," and others.

Mr. Auslander and wife reside on Riverside drive in New York and their home is a popular rendezvous for many prominent members of cultural and social circles. During Jack Hicky's recent visit in New York they honored him at a dinner party. And then when Mr. Auslander paused here for a far-too-brief visit during this southern tour, it was Atlanta's own nationally known poet who entertained 40 friends in his honor. Delightful informality was the keynote of the afternoon and the guests lingered far past the dinner hour, so interesting and gracious were the host and honor guest.

Jack's apartment on Peachtree road presents a cozy and cheerful atmosphere. Daffodil-yellow draperies hang in graceful folds over Venetian blinds. Two handsome seventeenth-century chairs covered in watermelon satin give just the right color balance on either side of the comfortable couch, which is covered in black chintz flowered in white calla lilies.

AMONG prominent Atlantans attending the recent Army-Navy football game at Franklin Field in Philadelphia were Charlie and Emily Inglis King, who left Atlanta about three weeks ago to visit their close friends, Helen and Tony Drexel III, at their lovely home in Bryn Mawr, Pa. While Emily and Charlie were in Philadelphia, they were honor guests at many delightful social affairs given in their honor.

They remained with the Drexels for several days before going to New York, where Emily was quite fascinated with the brilliant Christmas decorations that are already on display throughout the city. Mary Ettla, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Ettla, who is studying voice in New York, and who has often been the feted guest of the Kings, kept them quite busy socially during their brief stay.

The main problem with Emily and Charlie concerned their young son, Charles Hillary Jr. In the first place they hated to leave him, and in the second place, both sets of proud grandparents were eager to take him in hand during the trip. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt King won, as they are leaving soon for a world cruise and will not have the opportunity of seeing the baby for quite a while.

These popular Atlantans return Wednesday and will, no doubt, have many interesting experiences to relate to their friends.

ROSEBUD LEIDE'S name and popularity are causing quite a bit of trouble with the telephone company this season. Several evenings ago, one of her admirers attempted to contact her over the wire. He called the correct number and asked for Rosebud.

"Who?" was the exasperated answer. "Rosebud," he repeated. The voice at the other end seemed to be becoming very angry. "I'm sorry," it stated, "but this is the Home of Flowers, and we have no talking roses here."

WHILE James Kenan, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Kenan Jr., is a senior at Harvard, he has taken an attractive apartment in Boston, and is cooking his breakfasts, such as they are, to economize. Jim is very cheered because Jack Glenn and Anne Alston will be living in the same apartment house after their marriage.

Jim and Jack have been close friends ever since they were little boys, and when Anne joined the group, they were practically an inseparable trio. When Anne learned that they were to live in the same house with Jim, she hastily assured Mrs. Kenan that she would see that he is well.

Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun Compliment Debs At Tea at Home

Misses Eleanor Spalding and Margaret Holcomb, popular and attractive debutantes, were honor guests at the tea at which Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Calhoun were hosts yesterday at Tryggesson's, their home on Peachtree road, the guests being limited to a number of the debutante coterie and their escorts. An artistic arrangement of cut flowers graced the room in which the guests assembled and in the dining room crimson roses prevailed in the lovely floral decorations.

At one end of the dining table, which was overlaid with an exquisite lace cover, a handsome silver service was arranged and at the other end was the service for coffee service. In the center of the table was a centerpiece holding red roses and encircled by richly tinted fruits. Silver candelabra, in which gleamed white tapers, enhanced the beauty of the table decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner W. Calhoun and Mr. and Mrs. Roby Robinson assisted in the preparation and serving at the tea. Miss Spalding is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding and Miss Holcomb, president of the Debutante Club, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holcomb.

Teen-Age Girl Scouts Are Enjoying Activities

Teen-age Atlanta Girl Scouts are enjoying activities under trained leaders in each particular field, including horseback riding, band, cooking, and swimming. Mrs. H. S. Collier, Mrs. H. Jr., is leader and instructor for a group who ride horseback each Saturday. The following members of this group being from various troops and welcome visitors or new members of their own age: Misses Milly Wagnon, Anne and Mary Noble, India Upchurch, Marguerite Marion, Marion Oliver and Peggy French.

Troop No. 1 includes Girl Scouts of 14 years and over who have done exceptional scouting and have interest in doing community service and advanced techniques. Miss Sarah Bowman, Atlanta field captain and advisor of this troop, is a leader in nature, music and child nursing proficiency badge work; providing special food for a baby clinic, making toy animals for a child welfare organization, and helping leaders of other troops.

A new group formed at Cox College is planning to make woodcraft models. The group, consisting of 12 girls, meets in West End, composed of girls who have been Scouts three years and more, are enjoying leathercraft and illuminated work as craft projects.

Sound Policies Safeguard Investor, Says Grant &amp; Company Executive

NATION REFLECTS
BRIGHTER OUTLOOKHigher Levels Forecast for Dividend-Paying Securities by E. S. Grant

Increasing activities in the security markets and higher price levels for sound dividend-paying corporate securities was forecast Saturday by E. S. Grant, president of the Grant Company, widely known southern investment banking firm of Atlanta.

Returning from Miami, where he attended the convention of the National Association of Securities Commissioners, as an invited guest dealer, Mr. Grant said he found the security commissioners from every part of the country most optimistic concerning the progress made toward recovery in 1935 and the outlook for a very substantial further expansion in business and industry during the coming months.

"The investment banking and brokerage business," he asserted, "is on a sounder foundation today as a result of both federal and state governmental legislation, as well as the efforts of security exchanges and responsible investment dealers and brokers to eliminate unethical and unfair practices and to enforce policies and regulations which afforded maximum protection for the investing public."

"As a result of these sound policies and regulations, the investor may buy sound investment securities with greater confidence than ever before. More complete and dependable information is available to investors regarding securities which they are offering, making it possible to exercise sound judgment in the selection of securities and easier to maintain a closer check on investments after purchase are made."

"However," he added, "all of the rules and regulations will not take the place of sound judgment and common sense in selecting and maintaining a safe construction investment program. Each investor should make a careful appraisal of his own position, financial condition, income and then lay out his investment program to suit his own individual needs. Then

927 Wylie, S. E.Wright Company Introduces 'The 20th Century' Bar, Invites Inspection by Hotel, Restaurant Executives

The "customers" and service man shown at this handsome, modernistic Russ bar, "The 20th Century," are members of the staff of the Wright Company, where the unit may be inspected. The "bartender,"

Hotel executives and restauranteurs throughout the country who keep step with the changing trends of a progressive national life are excusing an unusual interest in the 20th Century.

Unlike its companion, the soda fountain, the greatest care should be used in selecting such investment. Detailed, up-to-date information on each issue should be secured from authentic, unbiased sources.

In discussing his own firm's policies and efforts to furnish their clients and the investing public with a comprehensive investment information and advisory service, Mr. Grant said: "We have made a part of our established policy in our brokerage operations to make available to our clients authoritative sources of information and counsel on any securities which they decide to buy or sell, and in our activities as investment dealers, we use the utmost care in the selection of issues which we will write or sponsor before accepting them for distribution, and then maintain a close check on these issues constantly thereafter."

Grant &amp; Company's investment information and advisory department is under the direction of E. L. Kendrick, one of the most competent and experienced security analysts and investment counsellors in the south, who is widely known for his sound conservative recommendations. The firm maintains a comprehensive financial library, including the services of Moody's Investors' Service, Standard Statistics reports and advices on bonds and stocks, Fitch Advisory Reports, United Business Service and other dependable and unbiased statistical and advisory services.

Investors interested in planning a sound, profitable investment program for the coming year are invited to visit Grant &amp; Company's offices at 61 Forsyth street, N. W., ground floor of the Healey building, and discuss their problems with a member of the firm's advisory staff and use the financial research and information facilities in checking up on their present investments or in selecting sound, dividend-paying issues best suited to their individual requirements.

Tropical medicine is traced to a start in 1,600 when the East India Company carried doctors to the Eclipses of the sun can occur only in the dark of the moon."

The front and back bars are selected.

The Wright Company features the 20th Century in three layouts and a combination of lengths ranging from 10 to 30 feet, each complete in itself and equipped to fulfill every need according to the volume of trade it serves. The 20th Century is a creation of the Russ Soda Fountain Company, perhaps better known to the hotel and restaurant fields as "Russ of Cleveland."

The simplicity of the 20th Century's front bar paneling is offset by two raised metal bands extending the entire length and over the return ends. These bands bear out the modern motif of the bar's basic structure and lend unity to the entire combination.

The commodes superstructure display section are lighted by cylindrical fogged glass fixtures, placed parallel to the backbar top. Curved stainless steel bands support the bottle shelves at each end of the backbar, extending into the display level. A narrow bottle neck rail with an apron extends the entire length of the backbar. A center mirror completes the outstanding design.

The Wright Company is prepared to install the 20th Century bar in any size unit, together with all necessary equipment, with the exception of the bottle shelving. Mr. Wright, president and general manager, invites restaurant and hotel men, as well as other interested persons, to visit the company's display rooms and to inspect this handsome Russ equipment.

Two Clubs and Players Worth a Million Go On Sale Tuesday

MAJOR QUINTETS GET INTO ACTION HERE THIS WEEK

Tech in Practice Tilts;
Y. M. C. A. and J. P. C.
Open Play.

By Jack Troy.

"I reckon," said George Myshall, "I will have to get me a bird dog, after all."

His listeners stirred restlessly.

"You know that bird dog of mine, the greatest bird dog that ever lived? The one that died last year?"

His listeners stirred restlessly again. One or two coughed and started to speak.

"Well, sir," said George Myshall, "I almost died when that dog died. I felt awful bad. You know he had the greatest nose a dog ever had. He could find birds when no other dog could."

"Well, when he died, I took that nose of his and I let it dry. Yes, sir; I let it dry in the sun and I tried out a little idea I had. I took a piece of that nose and I put a little of it on the point of that pocket compass I carry."

"I just had an idea. Well, the other day I took that compass and I went out in the field. I just held it in my hand and walked along."

"First thing you know that needle jumped. It pointed over to my right. I walked over that way. I never will forget the field. There was some brambles to the left and over at the right there was some tall grass. I walked right in there sort of slow like, and up came a covey of birds. It was one of the biggest coveys I ever saw. If I had had a gun I'd have got the limit right there."

There was a huge intake of breath about the room and a half dozen men started to speak, but George Myshall halted them.

"I knew that dog's nose was good," he said, "but I was, I confess, a little surprised to have it work so well on that compass."

"The next day I tried it again and I found 15 coveys with that compass. It was just like that dog of mine. It never made a false point. All I had to do was walk out there in the field and that compass point, with some of that dog's nose on it, would flip right around and point those birds. It never failed once."

"The day the season opened I took my gun and went hunting. The people who saw me start out looked at me mighty funny, starting out without any dogs. But I came back with the limit in half an hour."

"It seemed like that compass could pick them out right away. You know how a dog has to hunt out a field? Well, all you had to do was walk in a field and this compass would point the birds. It would flip all around if there were more than one covey in there, but it would come to rest pointing the nearest covey. There was no waiting and no guesswork. All I had to do was follow that compass and kick up the birds."

THIS WAS ENCOURAGING.

"Naturally," said George Myshall, "this was very encouraging, and I tried out another plan. I had me an old house dog there, a bulldog."

"I got me some adhesive tape and I taped me a small piece of that dog's nose on top of the nose of this here bulldog of mine."

"And then I took him out in the field with me. Of course I took the compass along, but I kept it in my pocket. I could feel it flipping around the moment I got in the field, but I watched this bulldog."

"First thing you know I saw his nose begin to pull to one side. He was the most surprised dog you ever saw. His nose wanted to go one way and he was going another."

"Well, sir, it didn't take long. No, sir; not nearly as long as you'd think. That dog got so he'd quit fighting that pull on his nose. He'd follow that pull and the first thing you know he was flushing birds."

"I had a lot of trouble with him at first. He'd go out there and run them up. But at last he quit that. I had an idea maybe that piece of dog's nose was putting on some sort of pressure to make him stop just when he got to the birds. I don't know. But anyhow, it got so I could go out and kill me a mess of birds with this bulldog, just so I didn't forget to take that adhesive tape and strap some of my old dog's nose on top of his. It sure was comical to see his nose pull one way, though those first few days."

"I'll bet it was," said one of his listeners.

"It sure was," said George Myshall. "It was real comical. Yes, sir, really comical. You'd have died laughing to see that dog's nose. But, of course, he soon got over that."

"And then I had me two or three weeks of great hunting. Things were going fine. I was killing more birds than anyone else. You see, there was no hit-or-miss plan in this pointing. That compass couldn't miss. It pointed birds right now, and it didn't make any false points on terrapins. No, sir. Not one."

"And this bulldog was doing just as well. He was going great. It looked like a great season for me."

"Let's go out to your house and see that compass," said one of his listeners, a bit grimly.

"That's what I said when I started this story," said George Myshall. "It looks like I'm going to have to get me some dogs, after all."

"Why?" asked one of the men, still grimly.

"Well," said George Myshall, "the other day I started home. I had my limit in quail and I stuffed that compass in my pocket and started for my car. When I got there the compass was gone. I found a large hole in my pocket. I've searched and searched, but I can't find it. And the next day that bulldog got run over and killed while playing in front of the house. I guess I'll have to get me some dogs."

There was a dead silence.

"Well," he said, "you needn't look as if you didn't believe me. No, sir. You needn't. You come out to my house and I'll show you the very pair of pants with the hole in the pocket through which I lost that compass."

WEBER OFFERS BIG MAT SHOW

Matchmaker Henry Weber's mat offering Tuesday night at the Atlanta theater will rank as one of the season's best. Six outstanding programs are promised in the first program.

Headed by Leon (Whiskers) Savage and Bill Middlekauf, one of the greatest of Florida fullbacks, the card also includes Dorve Roche and Rudy Strongberg in the semi-windup, and Williams and Carl Davis in the opening match.

There are no weak points in this card. From the first match to the last, hair-raising action is assured.

Last week's program set the spectators away raving about the brilliant wrestling exhibited. And Tuesday's card promises even more stirring entertainment.

The eight-week rule is the one which permits tournament play to that period, not including Davis Cup play.

Story of 'Leaping Lena' Levinsky One of Saddest in Ring History

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The primrose trail of boxing is strewn with pathos and tragedy, but one of the saddest of them all is the story of "Leaping Lena" Levinsky.

They called her "Leaping Lena" when she leaped into renown by casting aside the boresome duties of a housewife to manage her picturesquely brother, King Levinsky, right up to the very door of the heavyweight boxing throne. But the curtain has come at last to the colorful figure.

Tonight "Leaping Lena" is a chess player in the psychiatric hospital, sent there by relatives after they were no longer able to keep her in a private institution.

The next four had a score of 129. They were T. Barnes, A. M. Perker, F. R. Thomas and F. D. Murray. The third group finished with a score of 134. These men were: P. G. Lombard, J. A. Whately, H. F. Roberts and A. P. McElroy. Inclement weather minimized the number of entries.

En Garde!—Wilcox Twins Duel—at Georgia Tech

This picture might be titled "Brothers in Arms." The Constitution cameraman was wandering around in the Tech naval armory the other afternoon and came upon the brothers Wilcox (Leland, left, and John, right), engaging in a bit of fencing. Both admitted to ignorance of the finer points of the sport. But they were not deficient in the spirited manner in which they thrust and parried. Captain Bobby Hutchins, of the Tech fencing team, and Coach Richard Morenus are looking on and offering advice. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

Crisler Picks Four Tigers On Teams

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, head coach of Princeton's unbeaten and untied football team, named four of his own men, two each on the first and second elevens, in his All-America teams selected today for Young America, a national team.

The coming season is going to be one of the best Atlanta fans have ever had the opportunity to witness. But, as said, there is no chance to see all the games.

And, at that, it will be fairly difficult to pick out the best games. The majority of the Atlanta teams play great basketball.

Richard Morenus has been Tech fencing coach for several years. And at last the school has looked fencing squarely in the face and recognized it.

The only catch is that fencing does not occupy a very prominent position among other southern colleges.

Fact is, only Alabama, Rollins and one or two other schools take the trouble to include it in the athletic programs.

Nonetheless, Tech has a well-known fencing team and will endeavor to spear several victories during the season. Bobby Hutchins is captain of the jacket team.

Dueling ranks as one of the oldest of outdoor pastimes. And there is no reason why fencing should not get a play in the colleges. It has always seemed to me that an unusual amount of footwork is involved in the part of the participants.

For, after all, it would not be so very pleasant at that to stop in the middle of a heated parry and discover a sword, partially poked in one's nozzle.

The boys are well equipped with their fencing netting, so-called, and their padded shirts, but there is still a great sporting element involved.

The surprise of the past week was to discover those two-gum Texans, Leeland and John Wilcox, the Tyler twins, engaged in a spirited duel in the Tech armory. John was a valued member of the Tech football team, during his days in the Georgia game.

Both John and Leeland came out of this wild-swinging, swift-thrusting encounter with no marks.

They are not out for the team but

For, after all, it would not be so very pleasant at that to stop in the middle of a heated parry and discover a sword, partially poked in one's nozzle.

Paulino's Iron Jaw To Test Louis' Hitting Power Friday

VETERAN BASQUE NEVER ON FLOOR IN LONG CAREER

Brown Bomber Makes Debut in Garden; Both Men Work Hard.

By Eddie Briezt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The boxing world is going to find out next Friday night just how hard Joe Louis can hit.

Detroit's sensational "Brown Bomber," hailed as the sharpest puncher since Jack Dempsey, is going to try his shots against the cast-iron jaw of Paulino Uzeden who, in 60 battles over a 12-year stretch, has never known what it's like to kiss the canvas.

The two are billed for 15 rounds or less of fisticuffing in Madison Square Garden. The bout marks Louis' debut in the big "House That Tex Built."

On Paulino has lost more fights than he has won, and he can't punch any more. But he still is the ring's No. 1 punch collector. He is as hard to floor as ever. His unorthodox style of fighting makes him extremely difficult to hit except on the elbows, shoulders, back of the head and other spots where well-meant licks fail to do much damage.

OTHERS FAILED.

Few expect Louis to stop the Spaniard cold. But if the Bomber can succeed, where such fellows as Max Baer, Max Schmeling, Jack Delaney and Primo Carnera failed, and merely score a knockdown, you'll have to agree he has what it takes in those agreed lists.

Paulino is sporting Louis 15 years. The negro also has the advantage in height and reach. Paulino will have a slight edge in weight.

Both fighters sailed into the last week of training with a vengeance yesterday. Max Schmeling, who has fought the new champion, and who is in this country for the expressed purpose of seeing him in action, drove to Pompton lakes and watched closely as Louis cuffed half a dozen sparring partners around. Schmeling was impressed even though it was obvious Joe wasn't exactly himself.

DEMOLITION SEEKS BASQUE.

Meanwhile, Paulino, with Jack Damrosch and Brigadier General John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, in the gallery, romped through a brisk session at Orangeburg. The old Basque grinned from ear to ear as the best bets of his sparring match harnessed harmlessly off his chin and jaw.

The Spaniard, who hasn't fought since Max Schmeling beat him in Germany last July, is working much harder than Louis. The Bomber has been ill for a little while since his easy conquest of Max Baer. He has been appearing regularly in exhibitions and had little serious work to do at Pompton lakes.

Braddock Favors Bout With Louis.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—"There is only one direction in which the heavyweight champion can move—that's down."

That speaker was James J. Braddock, titular ruler of all the heavies. He sprawled on the divan of a hotel suite today and told why he wasn't leaping at a chance to fight Max Schmeling.

"In the first place, Max isn't much of a draw," Braddock said. "I doubt if he could gross over $250,000—$350,000 at the most. And just suppose he managed to outpoint me . . . where would I be?"

"No, sir. Once you get the title you may as well think straight. There is nothing else to win. The only think a guy can do is to be as much as he can while he's hot. Everybody's going to be licked some day."

"That's why I say that when I defend my title it will be against the best man available. That looks to be Louis. He is the fighter in the public eye," said Schmeling.

"I'd really want to get the title back, but I'd do like the rest of us had to do. That is, fight his way through the contenders and prove himself the logical challenger. Then I'll fight him. All he has to do is beat Joe Louis."

Joe Gould, the champ's manager, couldn't keep still any longer.

"Wait a minute, Jim," he urged.

"When Jimmy beat Max Baer for the title last summer, Schmeling was laughing and wanted to know 'Who's Braddock?' Well, we're asking now, 'Who is Schmeling?' What right has he to come over here and demand a championship bout?"

Louis Amateurish, Avers Schmeling.

POMPONT LAKES, N. J., Dec. 8. (UPI)—Joe Louis is quite amateurish in many of his ring maneuvers, Max Schmeling concluded today after taking his last peek at the Brown Bomber in action.

The beef-bellied black Ubahn of the Rhine, who formerly held the world heavyweight championship, gave off this somewhat surprising observation after watching the young Detroit negro step seven rounds with five punch absorbers in preparation for Friday night's bout with Paulino Uzeden.

It must have sounded like treason to members of the Lons entourage when Herr Maxie crystallized his immediate plans to the young Angel whose last three fights were Primo Carnera, Kid Gavilan and Max Baer. Right in the living room at Joe's training quarters—right in the heart of the Louis shrine, the Teuton Schlagher bore down on Joe's mistakes and lack of boxing finesse.

"Now dot I've seen him box, I think so more days before dot I've

Latest Victories Establish Southwest as Most Potent in Nation.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Two Texas teams which are aiming at further gridiron glory in post-season strugles on New Year's Day, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, kept the Southwest conference in front as the nation's most potent football group yesterday when they concluded highly successful seasons.

Southern Methodist, which will oppose Stanford in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, hung up its 12th consecutive victory, matched with 11 major wins from the midwest and Pacific coast as well as from the southwest, by trimming Texas A & A, 24 to 0. The Mustangs, watched by Tiny Thornhill, Stanford coach, used substitutes freely but had little trouble overwhelming the Aggies on a wet field to clinch the conference title.

The other Texas leader, Texas Christian, which had lost only to the Mustangs, found a stubborn rival in Santa Clara in a "preview" game for the Rose Bowl classic but won decisively, 10 to 6. The result indicated that the Horned Frogs will be just as tough an opponent for Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl game as S. M. U. will be for Stanford.

The other scattered games yesterday were of ill importance in the national picture. On the west coast Washington turned back Southern California, 42-21, in a game for the Big Five. Husky halfback, score all the points and thus earned a slightly higher ranking in the conference standing. Maryland, led by the brilliant Bill Guckeyson, trounced Western Maryland, 22 to 7, in post-season clash to win the state title. Florida, after a fight with the Gators, savaged a winner from a poor season by wallowing South Carolina, 22-14.

Except for the bowl games, all but one of those teams ended their 1935 season. Southern California continued a week longer, meeting the Pittsburgh Panthers next Saturday. Two other teams of "major" ranking are still in the field: San Jose, Calif., and California playing the University of California at Los Angeles and Utah facing in Hawaii at Honolulu.

There are over 55,000 black or brown bears, and over 5,100 grizzlies in the national forests of the United States and Canada.

Spiders apparently can distinguish between the taste of pure water, sugar solution, and brine, it is found from experiments.

most prominent citizens of Lawrenceville, died at the residence here this morning after a long illness.

She was born in October 11, 1849, the oldest child of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ambrose, pioneer residents to this section. She was married to Major Williams E. Simmons one of the prominent lawyers of Georgia, on December 16, 1869. Her husband died in January, 1931, they having celebrated their 61st marriage anniversary on Dec. 16.

Mrs. Simmons was known for her generous spirit toward the church and for donations toward charitable matters, and her home, one of the handsomest in Lawrenceville, was in former years a veritable haven for preachers and church laymen. She was a member of the Lawrenceville Woman's Missionary Society, organized in 1878, and retained her membership until her death. She was also a member of the Lawrenceville Methodist church for about 70 years and during her younger days was very active in its affairs.

VIRGINIA GIRL, 18, BURNED TO DEATH

Father Painfully Injured as Kitchen Stove Explodes.

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Lois Carwell, 18, was burned to death, her father, R. S. Carwell, suffered painful burns about the face and hands, and two younger children received less severe injuries today in an explosion and fire in the kitchen of the family home, at Brownsville, near here.

Lois had gone to the kitchen to start a fire to prepare breakfast. Her parents and seven other children were asleep upstairs. An explosion occurred, apparently in the stove as Lois started a fire, filling the house with smoke. Her father, aroused by the explosion, came down stairs to investigate, and as he opened the kitchen door the flames burst through to other parts of the house.

The family upstairs jumped to safety. Lois' 12-year-old brother receiving slight burns and a 10-year-old sister a broken arm.

The contents of the house were destroyed.

The father, proprietor of a garage at Brownsville, was brought to a Lexington hospital for treatment of his burns, which were described as not serious.

Neighbors are caring for other members of the family.

MAN SHOT IN AUGUSTA; ENTERS WRONG HOME

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Radio Patrol Lieutenant J. S. Hoover said a man giving the name of Howard Floyd of Warrenville, S. C., was shot and seriously wounded last night by a woman whose home he entered by mistake.

The officer said the woman was listed as Mrs. Annie Tarlton and that she was being detained pending the outcome of the man's wounds.

Miss Howard was well known as an author on subjects related to library work.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—A portrait of President H. J. Pearce, of Brenau College, was unveiled at the college today. The painting is by Lauer Bradfield Abele, Atlanta.

Members of Theta Upsilon, national social sorority of which Mrs. Abele is a member, were assisted by faculty members in conducting the exercises.

LIBRARIAN'S RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Body of Miss Howard To Be Taken to Bloomington, Illinois.

Funeral services for Miss Clara Eliza Howard, dean of the library school at Emory University since 1921 and nationally noted librarian, who died Saturday night at Emory University hospital after a short illness, will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Following the rites here, the body will be taken to Bloomington, Ill., her birthplace, for final services and burial.

Miss Howard had achieved national note in the library field. She served for two years as president of the National Association of Library Schools and was chairman for two years of the education committee of the American Library Association. She was a former president of the Atlanta Library Club.

Miss Howard was well known as an author on subjects related to library work.

FARM BODY REPORTS DEFICIT OF $11,579,894

Drop Announced on Eve of Court Hearing; Chargeable Against Processing Taxes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—On the eve of supreme court arguments on AAA's validity, the farm administration reported today a deficit of $111,579,894 in expenditures chargeable against processing tax receipts, while only $36,578,983 was available from this source.

The AAA, however, had a total of $206,072,434 available during the period, of which $169,493,457 was in appropriation and trust funds, leaving it a net bankkeeping balance of $36,578,983 as of October 1.

The processing tax deficit, the AAA said, would have been a balance if funds impounded by court injunctions had been received. It was estimated that on September 1, 20, a total of $60,000,000 in such taxes was tied up in legal proceedings awaiting supreme court determination of validity of their collection. If this sum were paid, the AAA estimated, the deficit for the period would be wiped out and a balance of $14,701,379 established.

Rental for the three months were $133,387,288; expenditures for removal and conservation of surpluses, $60,000; for farm relief, food conservation and disease eradication, $4,285; for trust fund operations, $2,176,556; administrative expenses, $11,325,645, and tax refunds, $6,921,784.

Processing tax collections during the period were divided as follows: $57,700,000, tobacco; $48,875,000, cotton; $8,506,105, tobacco; $310,526, field corn; $55,880,685, hog; $219,154, paper and juice; $16,939,172, sugar; $15,914, peanuts; $124,855, rice; $47,776, cotton ginning tax under the Bankhead law; $285,616, tobacco under the Kerr-Smith law; $1,266,474, $17,000, unclassified.

Total collections for the period were reported as $40,855,548, but part of this amount was said to have been credited on a deficit carried over from the preceding year, leaving only $36,578,983 available for the financial year which opened July 1.

The AAA said a comparison of taxes collected and paid in any one state could not be made accurately, since the taxes were paid at the point of manufacture and were distributed to consumers throughout the country.

Tax collections were largest in Illinois, the largest producer of cotton; New York, where large amounts of wheat, corn, hog, cotton and tobacco are processed, was second; North Carolina, where cotton and tobacco are processed, third, and Minnesota, as the leading wheat state, fourth.

Distribution of benefit payments was divided as follows: Cotton, $14,530,543; wheat, $36,800,250; tobacco, $5,780,714; corn-hog, $57,313,077; sugar, $14,599,171, and rice, $4,034,540.

A total of $3,723,134 was paid to producers for cattle in connection with the Bang's disease and bovine tuberculosis eradication programs.

JOHNSON DECLINES ROAD LAW COMMENT

COLUMBIA, S. S., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Governor Olin D. Johnston declined tonight to divulge details of legislation he hopes to have enacted at a special session of the general assembly convening Tuesday in an effort to break a deadlock over state highway commission.

A company of national gardeners could not be found in the state highway offices here and their commander, Major Frank H. Barnwell, said there were "ample funds" to meet pay rolls this week, but nearly all highway construction and maintenance work approached a halt as funds for it were tied up by an injunction.

Barnwell, said there were "ample funds" to meet pay rolls this week, but nearly all highway construction and maintenance work approached a halt as funds for it were tied up by an injunction.

Franklin Gossell, a six-year-old son, was the only survivor of the ill-fated Illinois party which set out for Texas last week. Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Warden, parents of Mrs. Gossell, were killed almost instantly when their car crashed into a parked coal truck and burst into flames. A. A. Gossell Jr. 10, succumbed the following day.
